Welcome to the Hydropolis Urban Water Portal, the TU Delft interfaculty portal for urban water management. This wiki brings together knowledge and experience on topics related to water and the urban environment from the faculties of Architecture, Civil Engineering & Geosciences and Technology, Policy and Management. The portal provides links to relevant departments, researchers and research projects at the TU Delft, and collects information on urban water practice, as well as other institutes and companies active in this field.

To get started, simply use the search engine below, or browse through the site using one of the subportals or by clicking items in the tag-clouds. Users are encouraged to add their own information, research projects, and publications. This can be done by following the "add content" link provided below. We have made an instructions manual to get you started.
